Abstract

In a stable world it is enough to identify the standard situations and find standard solutions. In a changing world, where no standard solutions are valid, one cannot act like that. In this context, the application of innovative solutions is useful and necessary. The advisory action and assistance for the transformation of an organization gain more and more ground in the world. The innovative system of personal and professional development (individual and group ones) allows the participants to become elite professionals in specific fields.

Key words: innovative networks, FDI, professional development
